

Troop 32

Review Checklist

Members of Troop 32 work hard to establish and maintain the highest possible standards. Periodic reviews and self-assessments help maintain these high standards. As a Boy Scout, you should review, update and sharpen your scouting skills on a regular basis. Because of your Boy Scout training and who you are, people will always expect you to be an expert in your basic scouting skills. You will find that these skills will be useful to you throughout your life. There is no better time to validate your skills than as you move through the advancement process. You already know all of this stuff. But, if you think you are a little rusty in some areas, ask for help. Several designated Assistant Scoutmasters will be helping you through this review.
